GAINS BY GERMANS IN GREAT OFFENSIVE ON WESTERN FRONT.

The present German offensive has in in progress more than three ceks. It has resulted in important net gains, for while at some points the allies were able to regain parts of the ground lost, the Germans have clung tenaciously to many positions spite all efforts to dislodge them.

Beginning on Jan. 29, the German effort was first directed at the much fought over ground in the Artois, near the Belgian border, the War Office anouncing the capture of 1,500 yards of French trenches northeast of Neuville-St. Vaast. By Feb. 9 the drive had been renumed in the Artois, with the taking of more than 800 yards of French positions west of Vimy reported. These gains were announced two days later to have been extended, while shortly afterward the French lines in the Champagne were attacked and upof 700 yards of trenches cap-

The drive in the Artois was resumed this fack, and yesterday Berlin claimed the capture of more than 800 yards of French positions east of Souchek. With it came the advance in the region of Verdun, which the French last night admitted was on a wide front, and that they lost the wood of Haumont and the Salient in the French line north of Beaumont.

NEW HAVEN WRECK INQUIRY SHOWS ENGINEER RAN BY SIGNALS SET FOR DANGER

TEN IN LIST OF DEAD.

Of the 100 Injured One Is Likely to Die - Federal Investigation Ordered.

(Special to The Evening World.)
NEW HAVEN, Feb. 28.—An inquest into the wreck on the New Haven Ratiroad yesterday near Milford, as a result of which ten are dead and more than 100 are suffering from injuries, was begun this morning by Coroner Mix. Chief Inspector Trumbull of the Public Utilities Commission sat with the Coroner.

The investigation begun last night by the Public Utilities Commission was halted, so far as the taking of testimony was concerned, until tomorrow, when a member of the Interstate Railroad Commission and a representative of the raffroad will be present. There will also be a separate Federal inquiry into the dis-

One of the chief objects of the inquiries will be to determine how it happened that both trains got into the same block. The division between Hartford and New York is guarded by semaphore block signals installed since the North Haven wreck, which was caused when an engineer passed by a "banje" which had been cleared by the express ahead, overrunning its block limits by three feet. SIGNALS. A theory advanced to-day was that Engineer Curtis of train No. 5, running three minutes behind No. 79, which unknown to him had been stalled on the west end of a curve, did not see the cautionary signal as he entered the Milford block because a freight train running on the next track to him was dragging along a cloud of smoke just at that instant. It is thought that Curtis could not make his brakes hold when he saw the danger signal 300 feet behind It is declared, however, that the signal-or, to Curtis, the "home" signalwas within his vision above the rock cut which was part of the curve, for a long distance after he had passed the cautionary signal, the semaphores having been installed in a way to make this possible. It is also claimed that Flagman Tourtellette, in running back from No. 79 to flag No. 5 did not hear the rush of No. 5 because Red it On It Does Not Blister of the noise of the freight train running on the next track to him. The ERHEUMATISM exact distance Tourtelette reached in running back is not known. It is thought his body was carried forward of No. 5 struck him.

Charles E. Elwell of the Public Utilities Commission said to-day, after a visit to the scene of the wreck, that Engineer Curtis probably saw the signals as he rounded the curve, but too late to stop the train either in response to the signals of the flagman or the warning of the block. There is a theory that Curtis fainted at his post when he saw that the collision, in which he was bill. the collision, in which he was killed,

A report on the running time of the two trains shows that train No. 79, which came into New Haven thirty minutes late, was despatched just one minute ahead of No. 5 which reached here eleven minutes late. On the train card the regular departure of the Connecticut River special is ten minutes ahead of the local, the latter having the Milford station stop. Yesterday being a holiday, however, the list of station stops may have been changed to accommodate passengers. Of more than three score of injured passengers who have been or are at
